If there is any apprehension or confusion, your physician should be consulted.

I understand that at the end of the procedure, the tub of water will be discolored. Some of this discoloration is due to the minerals in the water or seal salt being used in the water, and some of it may be the body releasing toxins from your skin into the water. The color changes will vary between clients & sessions. It may change a lot or a little - this is normal. The machine is working effectively and the body is absorbing healing frequencies/energy. The body will also purge several days after the treatment through the urinary system and/or the colon.
